ABOUT THE EVENT

The idea of parties exchanging written statements in place of evidence-in-chief emerged first in English litigation in the 1980s. The aim of this development was to allow each party to know in advance the case against them and to promote settlement. In international arbitration today, such statements are sometimes lengthy documents that reflect not so much the recollection of a witness, but the industry of the parties' legal teams to leave no evidential stone unturned, unaddressed or unpolished. In some cases, a witness statement is little more than a proxy for advocacy.

Furthermore, it turns out that memory can be fickle. Not only are we not very good at recollecting something, but how we remember (or misremember) events is influenced by the way in which we are asked about them. The steps taken by parties and their legal advisers to prepare a witness's evidence can therefore have a significant impact on what the witness recalls.

Against this background, how should witness statements be prepared? What matters should be covered in them? What directions should arbitral tribunals give with respect to witness statements? Or should we dispense with them altogether?

We will explore these issues and more in an interactive seminar with Toby Landau KC and Anneliese Day KC in Singapore on 18 April 2023 at 5.30pm at NTUC Centre.

This session will be of interest to international arbitration lawyers, arbitrators and in-house counsel involved in disputes.
